Not illustrated. 1886 Excerpt: . . . of the author of the paper to offer a substitute for the old notion that all organized beings are planned by an Infinite Intelligence, and caused to exist by an Infinite Creative Power, --a substitution of something that inheres in the organism for the action of God Almighty. The text of the paper shows that this was simply begging the question, and was as uncalled for as it was unscientific. Whatever may have been the essayists individual views regarding the existence of a personal God or a superintending or overruling Providenco, he certainly said nothing on that occasion which warranted the assumption and assertion. The members of the New York Odontological Society were only invited to a consideration of the evidences that were presented as to the influences that function or use, nutrition, and heredity exert on the origin, the health, the morphology, and the structural arrangement of organs and tissues; or, in the language of Lamarck, that the production of a new organ in an animal body results from the supervention of a now want continuing to make itself felt, and a new movement which this want gives birth to and encourages; that the development of organs and their force of action are constantly in ratio to tho employment of these organs. But this cultured gentleman entirely ignored the arguments presented, assumed the role of guardian and essayed the defence of the Supreme Being, who he thought was in this paper robbed of the credit...
